COVER LETTER

Dear. Mr. Harper Russo.

A cover letter is a three or four paragraph document addressed to an employer to convey your interest in a vacancy.

This letter should also indicate your suitability for the required position. Writing a cover letter as a seasoned professional can be a little different.

First, start with how you found out about the vacancy and why you were interested in the position. In writing this letter, use clear and easy-to-read words. You need to appear professional and friendly, but not too formal.

Next, provide an example of why you are a good fit for the job. Feel free to use a bulleted list and include a number that shows your accomplishments.

Thank them for their time and attention, and let them know that you look forward to their response. Happy job search.

Yours faithfully.
